

Welcome Quentin Clark, SVP of Engineering, Product, and Design

August 4, 2017

Drew Houston August 4, 2017

We're excited to announce that Quentin Clark is joining Dropbox as our SVP of Engineering, Product, and Design. In this role, he will lead strategy and execution across these teams. Quentin has deep experience in SaaS, with 22 years of product leadership roles, overseeing billion-dollar businesses at Microsoft and, more recently, SAP. His work with business applications, large scale infrastructure, and machine learning will be invaluable as we continue to scale.

Quentin shares our passion for investing in people, building great teams, and developing products that have an impact on the way people live and work. After his experience at large tech companies, he's spent the last year advising startups, and is looking to continue breaking new ground at Dropbox.

Quentin, his wife, and two sons love the Bay Area after living in Seattle for many years. He's an enthusiastic runner, reader, and home cook. We're thrilled to have him on board.

Welcome, Quentin!